Zachary Quinto revealed that his role as young Spock in the upcoming Star Trek XI movie will get underway this November. That's when he'll be taking a short break from his role of Sylon on NBC's Heroes. He seemed enthusiastic about the role, saying "I really identify with Spock's struggle. We're going back to a time before anything was established. These characters are in a completely different stage of their lives."

Quinto told interviewers that there are 11 different sets ready and... waiting at the Paramount lot, and there will also be two weeks of shooting to take place in Iceland.
